Bitdefender Home Scanner is designed to make your home network safer and protect your connected devices. Without the need for any tools, Bitdefender Home Scanner looks for security vulnerabilities, like hidden backdoors, weak authentication, and weak passwords on your network devices. Scan your home network for exploitable vulnerabilities Bitdefender Home Scanner offers a scan of your home network to determine the security status of connected devices. It checks your computer for potential malware and automatically notifies you about any exposed vulnerabilities, as well as the status of your home network. This gives you more time to stop a hacker from getting access to your device and stealing data or sending bad emails. Finds vulnerable devices Bitdefender Home Scanner can discover any connected device and let you know if it is: Vulnerable Weak Breakable System vulnerabilities are identified through a scan that looks for any weak authentication and weak passwords. This scan is performed on all devices and on your computer to make sure nothing is misidentified as vulnerable. Weaker passwords are highlighted by red dots, while weaker passwords are colored in red. Even if no vulnerability is found, Bitdefender Home Scanner recommends you update your software and firewall, install apps on your mobile devices, and change your password. Protect your home network against attacks Bitdefender Home Scanner is designed to protect your home network against threats, including password attacks. It constantly scans and records your home network and notifies you if any device has been changed within the last couple of days. This allows you to restore the vulnerability status of the device before a hacker was able to exploit it. You can also get in contact with the Bitdefender team directly through the application, so they can guide you to deal with any vulnerability that has been identified.
