I have tried to get a function in my view model to be called (CalledInViewModel.cs) but so far have been unsuccessful. I've tried to do it with (in MainView.cs) public class HomeViewModel : ViewModelBase { public ObservableCollection Functions { get; set; } public HomeViewModel() { Functions = new ObservableCollection(FunctionFactory.GetFunctions()); public void CalledInViewModel() //do some stuff } } However i've only gotten errors saying that homeviewmodel has no available method called calledintviewmodel. Do I have to do something in XAML.cs? A: You can't access functions in a ViewModel directly from a view. If you need access to a function from your ViewModel you should create a callback for this function. It would be a typical callback for MVVM. You could use the command pattern to encapsulate this. Consider a button with a Command

Guitar Mode Maker is a program that turns the sound of a guitar into a MIDI file, and you can play it using your keyboard. Using the Guitar Mode Maker, you can freely create your own unique scales and MIDI files. The Guitar Mode Maker records your performance using the SHM-5000 hardware metronome that you'll be using to follow the scale. How to install Guitar Mode Maker: Download and install Guitar Mode Maker file that is listed on this page. To use, just run the program and a new dialog box will pop up where you can choose your sound/guitar model, scale, and the amount of the chord that you want to record. Once you have finished recording, you have to "Activate" and "Shut Down" the program using the Setup screen. Notes: You can also create a new scale and a new chord in Guitar Mode Maker as well. If you want to share the chord/scale that you have created in Guitar Mode Maker, just right click on the chord/scale that you want to share and go to "Share". The "Play" button in the dialog box can take you to the song that you create in Guitar Mode Maker. If the SHM-5000 hardware metronome is not available or is not turned on in the pre-configured settings, the program will pause when it's recording your sound. At the time of this review, the Guitar Mode Maker is still in Beta phase. However, if you have any suggestions for improvement, please let us know. Chord/Scale Rotation Settings: If you want to change the order of the scale/chord that you have already saved, just load the saved file using the Setup screen. If you want to start over from the first note in the scale, you have to edit the file using a text editor. Guitar Mode Maker Performance Settings: Set a sound model, scale, chord, and amount of the chord that you want to record. Tap the arrow keys or use the menu items to change the rotation order of the chord/scale that you have already saved. Record your song using the SHM-5000 hardware metronome.
