Legend of Solitaire is a unique and fresh solo card game. You are a banished dragon — an old and weary dragon exiled from a distant land. It is up to you to guide your dragon into a tunnel and away from the dreaded Dragons of Exile. Journey through seven exciting single player levels while using the powerful Legendary cards along the way. (more...)Wait, what? Does that mean that you don't have them? Confused? Me too. You see, I also own a second-hand DeLorean that I bought and converted in a DeLorean Pavilion from a BMW that was decommissioned. I used eBay to purchase a unit that was already converted, but that was stripped of all features that would make the value more attractive, so I had to do some custom work to get it running. Now in addition to having an antenna in the top of the car, I have two big external radiators. That said, I still wanted the same styling and a minimal amount of changes to the vehicle. The result is an eye-catching DeLorean that I absolutely love. Luckily, the interior is still mostly intact and the only areas that had to be completely changed are the inboard seat belts and the stock seat belts. I replaced the handles with Kryptonite locks and added a couple of mirrors. The driver and passenger windows in the rear have a special design that allows you to see outside the car. I added wing mirror t-bars and stickers to improve the overall look. The overall result is a custom DeLorean with improvements that will make your friends jealous. If you're interested in buying a DeLorean but don't like the prices that can be found online, you might want to check out the auctions at NAMA.Q: Docker-based Java Stomp server fails to start I am trying to run a docker-based Stomp server. - Beautiful and surreal graphics - Easy and fun controls - Original and immersive story - Highly interactive platforming Well, despite the clunky user interface the game is still fun and it's completely playable, even with the weak and slow controller. The movement is fun, the jumping is satisfying and the boss battles are innovative and challenging. The controls can feel a bit off, but overall it's a solid little game that I recommend to everyone, especially if you don't have a more powerful hand-held to play it. The game is quite short, so it doesn't take up a lot of time, but that's not a problem for me because it's cute and cute games are fun! It's the middle of the Antarctic. defense, help Bercy to clientele In 1963, Swiss Scientist Thomas K. Anschutz suffered a self-inflicted gunshot wound to the head. Dr. Anschutz conducted research at the University of Wisconsin-Madison, was Professor of Biochemistry at Ohio State University and professor and vice president of the Institute of Radio Research at the National High Magnetic Field Laboratory in Los Alamos, New Mexico. Anshutz committed suicide after becoming disgruntled with the National Security Agency's ongoing research on the biological effects of inertial and microwaves, a time when the project was still classified. Among his victims was the quiet Dallas, Texas startup effort known as Indigen Defense Systems, Inc., founded by then doctoral student, Donald H. Cherry. According to Cherry, Dr. Anschutz, a close friend, began harboring discontent over the direction of the project. With the full support of authority, and apparently Dr. Anschutz's initial blessing, the NSA applied its full measure to Indigen, constructing seven secret military and intelligence testing facilities throughout the world. Most of these facilities are situated in ten different countries, with one of the largest found in Mora León, British Columbia, Canada's equivalent of the CIA's remote Warfare Research Station 200 miles north of Los Angeles. This facility was originally established by the CIA in 1962, but then passed from the service. Indigen and IntelCorp obtained the compound to conduct research on foreign weaponry and weaponry mimicking the lightgun weapon system. Sometime after Dr. Anschutz terminated the relationship between himself and the NSA, it was learned that Indigen's work for the NSA and the CIA was the subject of an official investigation. While the their sources are widely varied, both agencies received official reprimands, although it appears that IntelCorp was included. The clock continued to tick, and NSA continued its research on its clandestine projects, including the Agency's electromagnetic weaponization project code-named, "Project Shiva". At this point the NSA is dealing with a number of problems, not the least of which is the difficulty of maintaining secure operating environments for the weapons system. In most cases, the secrecy of the facility and network of sites make the facility difficult to surveil. The government has even manufactured certain sites as honeypots, with equipment capable of making them appear inactive. Since Dr. Thomas K. Anschutz's paranoid property work was cut
