WZZM's news director resigns over past conduct News Director Tracy L. Crowley is resigning from WZZM in a move the new station's leaders are labeling "no big deal." The station's news director resigned Monday after media sources reported he had sent a string of sexually explicit and harassing text messages while working at WZZM/Grand Rapids NBC affiliate WOOD. "I'm real appreciative that (WZZM) chose not to rush to judgment in their response to those reports," Crowley said in a statement Monday. "Unfortunately, the texts were so beyond the pale that it would have been irresponsible not to take any action. "It was a decision I knew was the right thing to do

What's new in SHNIPERS:

I used the "Aeon of Strife" board to test out the "Guilty Gear Strife" board and I got bested pretty badly by a simple knowledge of how the current game works and what its weaknesses are. The GUI is better on that board, it has attributes and no doubt other vectors, but that results not much help if you use strategies against it. Namely I played the entire game with 198 ratings and won EVERY TIME, so I will detail a few of them in this corner, with the aim of getting better at beating GUILTY GEAR STRIFE! Pire Profile Blog Joined June 2011 Poland 1718 Posts #2 By chance you could try the Akatsuki Board too? It has advantages over the STRIFE one, especially in the jetpack area. Playing in the jetpack here was the moment I realized how easy it would be if you had to micro with a fix rate. Hoya Profile Joined June 2012 Austria 736 Posts #3 Id make a third board :p But yea the jetpack over highground is a big advantage in that aspect ;D And all the maps are incredibly frustrating to play on and for a few of them have no corner and use "knockout" style. Not really beginner friendly by any means. And they could use some sticker's for the edges to make it easier
