the arizona department of public safety (dps) conducts compliance audits of licensed contractors. compliance audits are conducted to determine if a licensed contractor is using the skills required for their license type. upon the completion of a compliance audit, a compliance violation is issued. in response to a complaint, dps will investigate and issue a civil penalty or citation to the licensee. civil penalties are monetary fines issued for minor violations and violations that do not result in loss of license. civil penalties are not taken into consideration in the calculation of the dps bond. if a licensee files for license suspension/revocation, a hearing is held and a suspension/revocation order is issued.

suspension/revocation is the most serious action that the department can take. the suspension/revocation order may also lead to a contractor's license revocation. cannabis use is associated with an increased risk of several infectious diseases, including herpes simplex virus type 2, human immunodeficiency virus (hiv), human papilloma virus, hepatitis c, and tuberculosis reference 165, 166, 167, 168, 169 . given the limited understanding of the effects of cannabis on immune function, some infectious diseases may actually increase over time when cannabis use is prolonged. one study has shown that frequency of cannabis use is positively associated with the prevalence of hiv-associated oral candidiasis in the united states reference 174 . however, data from a canada-wide survey indicate that cannabis use is not associated with an increased risk of human immunodeficiency virus (hiv) infection, or with slower progression to acquired immunodeficiency syndrome (aids) in hiv-infected adults reference 175 . although the risk of infection with other pathogens, such as hepatitis c reference 166 and tuberculosis reference 168 , has not been studied in relation to cannabis use, data from epidemiological studies suggest that use of cannabis is not a risk factor for the transmission of these infectious diseases. however, there is some evidence that cannabis use may be associated with delayed diagnosis and treatment of hiv-associated opportunistic infections reference 176 . therefore, patients who use cannabis should be informed of the risks of contracting infectious diseases (e.g. by accessing cannabis products labelled with the recommended health warning and/or reputable health canada authorized licensed producer of cannabis for medical purposes).
